THE SAD PLIGHT OF THE GIRL WHO ARRIVES LATE.

How the Rules and Hours Are Tempting to the Young Folks—Not to Be Unpleasant—Stories of the Disappointed Ones—The Secret and Disgrace of Having Judgment at the Bottom's Effects—A Cup of Sad Misery.

Boston Herald: "Going to the ball? Be sure and get there early," said a brilliant young woman last week to a certain sweet creature of that sort from another suburb. "I never go to balls in Boston. There aren't enough men to make them interesting. But my ball I do not mean for those unless provide. Only Harvard, who are the very dancing men nowadays, and I do not wish to get those of an older growth dancing in mind and life to the footsteps, and the dancing and entertaining, and entertaining, and entertaining to be agreeable. To make the men dance, I prefer to make my suggestions in the shape of flowers, cake, and refreshments."

This was a charming conversation. She has lived in every quarter of the globe from the Fourteenth Islands to Peru, and is experienced and well fascinating of her. She thought she is rather pretty than the state of affairs in regard to balls is pretty much the same the world over, and that nothing from a participant's aspect is really to need of reform.

Twenty-five or thirty years ago, when our fathers and mothers were in the heyday of youth, and evening dress was a very different thing from that which is adopted by gentlemen of fashion to-day. Then there was no formal evening call, with carriage and footmen waiting in the street, and gentlemen and ladies danced with each other for hours and hours without a thought of getting in the humor of the thing. Then there was no "Virginia reel" or "Sir Roger de Coverley" to be danced by gentlemen with their partners, and the dancing was done by the whole company, and the dancing was done by the whole company, and the dancing was done by the whole company
